WHAT OF LIFE?

ermon preached recently by Rev. J. N. Pres Tridge in the Haptist Churck.

Whatis Youn Life?" James IV: 14.

A great many answers have been given to our question. Mr. Herbert Spencer says, translated into plain Speacer says, translated into plain English, "Life is the function of a being which enables it to adjust it-self to its external surroundings." In still plainer English this means, In still painer Edgish this means, at Something which when cold can build a fre and when hungry can prowure and prepare food. Mr. Goethe, the greatest of the Germans, answers through his writings, that life is a sensitively organized hot of pas-sions which may be treely grathind, a vast bundle of desires which wilt never be realized; and when the end comes there is nothing for the pro-tesser to do but to die. His Wilhelm Meister, a man of talent and genins, piddles away his manhood as genins, piddles awny his manhood as manager of a nondescript theatrical troop, playing one piece, it is true, as it will never be really presented, yet doing nothing at all. Well does Carlyle rall him a "milk seq." In his other great character, Werther, we timl so much of passion and sallness and vanclonging that whoever reads it must for the thue be sick of living. We are told that when it was circulated through Germany in every college and university hall was heard the ring of the soleine's pistol. Zeno said, lafels a burden, which must be borne. That its lassues were beyond our control and pregnant with sorrow and suffering That he only was the hero who bore inevitable calamitles without mur muring. When an old man he burns his linger, and after thinking the matter over, concluded te had borne tils burden long enough, had uffered his part and so retired to his 10 ma and strangled himself. Hemer's idea of life was a conflict, a contest st arms, a display of physical pow-ers, a clashing of swords and clang-ing of shields. That the equipments of life were ships, spears, helmets, charbits, swords and "brass bound stidelds." Nero's answer is, Life is a stage where painted clowns contend stage where painted clowns content for the applanse of the rabble, a thirsting for flattery which cannot be satisfied. Napohon says it is a vast battle field where the spoils be-long to the victor. Living is con-quering. Edgar Possays Life is a tragedy with "muct of madness, and more of sin, and horror the soul of the plot." And at the end where "ont are the lights" "the curlain, a funeral pall, comes down with the rush plastorm;" the play is the tragedy man, "and its bero, the conqueror worm." Too true, alas, such a soil, ernshing trageily was life to him. Each of these men represents class es of to-day. Their answers are the answers we often read in newspapers and poems and magazines. Notice, and poems and magazines. Notice, will you, how they represent it as an emb within itself—a thing to be smitted out by the grave. How different from this is the answer given by inspiration! It says Life is but the preface to the book of immortality, it is but the step to the universe, it is a rare with heaven as the reward. Here these Heaven-born beto take ou color and shape for eternity. To-night let us look earnestly into this probation that to us it may become more real and we be aroused to selze upon its possibilities.

1. It is a very brief prebation.

The verse from which the text is taken reads "For what is your life? It is even a vapor which appeareth for a little time and then vanisheth area." It has a very brief and the picture, and Angelo sorang forward, saved. God, prompted by his love, often spoils our pictures.

De Quinsey tells as that he hay in the great pyramid wrapped in nummy bands for a thousand years and awaking found a few hours only had passed. When Life is over it to us will appear a dream, a short dream. The happenings will draw together until our probation shall be but a speck belilid us. If we review it, it will be a single pleture on the eanvass, of which we will see a cradle, a few toys, some tools, arm-chair and a coffin. These dark nights of sorrow, these leng years of burden bearing will look short and trilling. They will make but one shade darker the back-ground of the pleture. These things which excite and Taselnato us now will then seem insiple, and colorless. We will wonder how they could have swayed us from the paths of knowledge and dnty. It is wiser and better to view Life from that standpoint than this, for it is more correct. Let us take warning. Parker's Halr Balsan to any similar

War Imminent Between England and Russia.—The Latest From Egypt.-Gladstone Sick-More Rebel Victories.

Lonnon, March 3 .- It is reported from Woolwich arsenal that in mliitary circles it is understood that the Government has arranged to hold in readiness 150,000 troops for service against Russia In Afghanlston. England is to depend for protection npon reserves.

In the House of Lords, this afternoon, in answer to a question respect- besides. ing the position of the Government on the Russlan-Afghaulstan frontier quostion, Earl Granville admitted Russlan troops had been advancing In the disputed territory of Afghanistan, and when requested by England to withdraw from their advanced posts, they refused to retire. Sir Peter Lumstlen advised the Afghans not to retiro from betore Russlan troops, but to dispute every inch of ground, and sald the British Government will uphold them. Granville refused further information.

The recruiting report shows that the British army now numbers ISL-000 men.

Offield advices state the sortic by the garrison at Kassala, which resulted in the loss of 28 officers and 632 men, occurred on the 2d of February. According to advices from Massowan, the garrison at itassala is an effeetlye force of 600 men. The town is closely besleged and the garrison short of ammunition. The Egyptlan troops are discontented. The Government at Cairo has abandoned all hope of relieving the town. Seven years envlier the daily circulation of the Morning Post was but 850 copies, and its pregress had been rapid; yet that of the Times was even more marvelous during tha ten follow-ing years. From baying the smallest withe 14th of February, is, er more earrestly was, celebrated in Eugland, Scotland, and in different parts of the continent, particularly Lorraine and Maine in France, by a very peculiar and amusing cusion. On the eve of St. Valentine, a number of young folks—mabls and bachelors—would assemble tog ther and inscribe apoa little hilbert the manes of an equal number of maids and buchelors—tors of their acquaintmanes, throw the whole into a receptable of seme sort.

The influences of Friendship and content of the many thousands were called for such a formal m whole into a receptable of some sort, and then draw them lottery-wise—care, of course, being taken that each should draw one of the opposite sex. The person thus drawn becomes one's valentine. Of course, beshes having got a valentine for one's self, one valentine. Of course, besides having got a valentine for one's self, one because, by the universality of the person's evalentine; but, as Mission, a learned traveler in the early part of hist century, remarks, the man stock faster to the valentine that had fallen to him, thun to her to whom he had tailen. These imaginary engagements, as may readily be supposed, often led to real ones; lecaose one necessary emissioner of the control of the matter and then intimated his inhibity to execute what was required. He had visited England Ia the hope of finding there the opening and the support which he could not obtain in his native country. He found a sympathlzer in Thomas Itensley, with whom he entered isto an agreement lu 1897. Two years later, when a working model of Kocolg's impravel press had been completed. Bensley brought the matter before Mr. *Ther, who, for the moment, was so haly occupied with other ungagoments that he could no entertain a new setteme. In 1812 Koenig had finished one of his new printing presses, and the caductors of the principal London journals were invited to see it in operaion. Mr. Perry, of the Vorning C ide, w very shread man, and the isliter of a meet successful news paper, would not even accept the invitation, declaring that. the discount of the new margine, Mr. Walter accepted the invlation carefully exhalled Koonig's improved press, and at once ordered two double presses on the same model. Two years chased before these presses were constructed and at work. Rumors of the new invention were circulated, desp.to the secreey to which all concerned had moon is the most interesting of all the beavenly bodies. It has been partlen-larly serviceable in the proof it affords of the law of gravitation. It proves, two,

what the world has been in remote ages of the past and what it will be in the remote ages to come. Its most significant services to man has ban as a measurement of time. The only perceptible offect which the earth Las upon to let patience have her perfect work. In fact, under each of them also there can be no joyful or happy thristlen ex-perience without it. First, we used the continued presence, us a sustaining principle, under the manifold trids, af flictions, disappointments, bereavements and sorrows of lite. What is a man to do who has never learned to be patient the fierce storms of adversity beat upon his lubitation and lds heart? Soon or late these must come to every luman heart. There is no exemption from heart. There is no exemption from these trials. With many they are the daily experience of life. To all they must come nt some time. How are we to meet them? How is any troubled geance upon the inventor. The new presses were erected in rooms adjoining dens, except in the exercise of that calm, serone, heroic patienes which is learned in the school of thrist? Here it is, and those wherein the old presses were in operation. At six o'clock in the morning of the 29th of November, 1811, Mr. Waiter entered the office with several damp printed sheets in his band, and informed the starting pressure at work here only, that the belleving soul has heard that voice which stills the tem-pest of all human passion, and cries: "My son, despise not then the clin-ten-ing of the Lord, nor faint when thou art rebuked of Him. For whom the tian work is conditioned on patience, and is never fully crowned except by the grace of patience.—Interior.

-Te make "Tho Man I Am" one with "The Man I Might Have Beea" is the great end of our lives; it was for this that wo were created. To have accomplished this is success; to have eomplished this is success; to have missed it is failure. Hell itself is but the measure of dispurity between "The Man I Abi." To behold, with a vision too into illuminated, the glowing course which might have been pursued, which tool intended should be pursued, and to compare it with the just which was chosen and with fatal patience and persistence pursued, will be the sad despairing to of many a soul. The course may be thorny; it may be dark; but it is the only course of real happiness and success.—National Baptist. Fancy an English farmer turning out after breakfast and admiring his six-acre field of wheat, delichously green, about two feet high. Fancy him, too, coming home to dinner at moon and seematter-of-fact ithistration of what mry be seen any spring where Cyprus lo-custs abound. We have had the locusts with as always. In the old, old days they were sent by the gods; In loss re-mote times they were a dispensation of Providence. They came and went, and nobody ever thought of trying if some-thing could not be done to stop their ravages. Under Turkish rule, of course, this foeling was intensitied by the fatal-ism peen are to their faith. It was kis-met, and there was nothing to be done.

Andrew Hall, the course of all planetary life. There is every reason to suppose that our present condition was at one time less; that she possessed an atmosphere, animal and vegetable life. That has now passed away. Her surface is a sterile, rocky mass. The atmosphere has gone or nearly so, and the seas are dried up. This same process is going on with our earth, and a similar result will eventually easue, but by reason of the greater bulk of our planet, effects produced in ten millions of years in the moon will require sixty millions with us.—N. In the Greek of the New Tastament two different words are used reneatedly and semetimes interchangealdy to describe this distinctively Christian grace. each of them being translated into our English version-patience. The printal sense of the ene is endurance, per:0 verance, permanent continuance, o stendy bearing up under the trials and alllictions of life. This idea is correctly given in Rom. ii. 7, when St. Paul says "Ged will give eternal life to them who by patient continuance in well-doing, seek for glory and honor and lumortality." The other Greek word indicates the state of mind or feeling with wideh the toils and trials of life are borne, and is about equivalent to magnanhnity, forbegrance, fortitude, slow unger, great-heurtedness. In our English version this second won for pullence is sometimes rendered leng-suffering or forbearance, as when the Apostlo Peter says:
"The long suffering of our Lord is salvation." (2 Peter iii. 15). St. Paul sets before us the true ideal of this grent-hearted Christian virtue when he says: "Be patient toward all men, not remlering evil for evil unto any man, but following that which is good both among yourselves and to all men."
The Edstle of James, which may ladeed be called a treatise on patience The Deadly Malaria of the Roman and good works, sets before as the same explted bleal of boly living, when b exhited lifeal of holy living, when it says: "Be patient ther, fore, brethren, unto the coming of the Lord. Behold the linsteinding walteth for the prechens fruit of the earth, and hath long patience for it, until he receive the early and latter rain. He we also patient; stablish your hearts; for the coming of the Lord draweth nigh. Take my brethren the projects, who have spoken in the name of the Lord, for an example of suffering affliction nad of patience. Behold we count them happy and of tender merey." (t Tues. v. 14; James v. 7-10).

There are two aspect; or conditions of human i fe, ia encle of which we need when the day of cal unity comes; when soul of man to bear up under such buroth every son whom Ha receiveth."

Then, agala, putience, as a working principle, is needed in all the toils of basiness, in all the eads of duty, in all the chaages, and the work of daily life The husbandman must plow the ground had sow the seed in the patience of hope; he must wait for the early and the latter rala; nor can he reap in joy till he has long and patiently writed for the harvest. And precisely so is it in all spiritual work, in all Christian toll. Indeed, all true, successful Chris-
